

HOW CAN WE MAKE SUPPLEND BETTER

User Testing Analysis

~Strong focus on discounts and reviews builds interest, but aggressive sales tactics and missing trust signals hinder purchase confidence

What people noticed within 5 seconds

- Reviews and ratings prominently displayed
- Nail fungus treatment

What stand out to you on the page?

- The good reviews at the top
- Vegan product
- It doesn't seem to be a long treatment
- Texts in german
- Big sale and very appealing marketing
- Discounted prices
- Product images and before-and-after visuals into pop-ups

Is there anything missing?

- Shipping information about due date and costs are missing for some users
- Social media information
- Confirmations that the product is legitimate
- Which ingredients were used since begin

What were your first impressions?

- Good reviews
- The aggressive sales approach makes it sound like a scam
- Good navigation, but the headlines and short text isn't drawing attention for some users

Would you buy?

- Yes, there is enough information before buy
- Aggressive marketing, seems like a scam

~Users are missing information about ingredients, product size, and shipping details, along with the absence of clear certifications, expected time to have results leave users hesitant

What aspects can preventing you to buy?

- Overemphasis on discounts and "pressure sales" create skepticism
- Missing certifications (e.g., FDA approval) and recognizable guarantee logos reduce credibility
- Users want clearer details on product ingredients, bottle sizes, and estimated shipping times since beginning
- Small font-size into headlines and science back-end graphic
- Mainly lack of details about shipping costs and delivery times frustrates users

What aspects can motivating you to buy?

- Good discounts and promotions
- Prominent display of high ratings and reviews builds trust and credibility
- Detailed descriptions, ingredients, and the scientific backing create a sense of transparency
- Bundle deals and offers
- Clear purchase process

What information are you looking for?

- Product ingredients: Clear, detailed information about the ingredients used.
- Exact details on the size of the product bottles
- Clear information on how long it takes to see visible results
- Recognizable logos or approvals
- Guidance on the best product options or bundle choices for specific needs

~Smooth checkout and pre-applied discounts are well-received, but enhancing trust signals, providing shipping details, and clarifying product information could further boost user confidence and satisfaction

What do you think about add to cart experience?

- Shipping information is missing
- The already applied discount is amazing.
- It's easy and shows security

Cart and Checkout Experience

- Smooth and simple checkout process.
- High-pressure language.
- Users appreciated seeing the discount already applied.
- The offer of free shipping was well-received when noticed, adding value to the purchase.

Improvements

- Add recognizable certifications or approval and secure payment logos
- Display estimated shipping times and costs clearly on the product page and in the cart
- Provide clearer information on product ingredients, bottle sizes, and expected results timeline
- Make the website easier to read and navigate, with clearer headlines and increase font-size

Key Takeaways | User Testing Analysis

1. Strong focus on discounts and reviews builds interest, but aggressive sales tactics and missing trust signals hinder purchase confidence.
2. Users are missing information about ingredients, product size, and shipping details, along with the absence of clear certifications, expected time to have results leave users hesitant.
3. Smooth checkout and pre-applied discounts are well-received, but enhancing trust signals, providing shipping details, and clarifying product information could further boost user confidence and satisfaction.