

HOW CAN WE MAKE TABS.CO BETTER

User Testing Analysis

~Users are intrigued by the novelty and potential of sex chocolate to bring fun and variety into intimate moments. The interest in seeing tangible results and more varied product applications reflects a desire for multifaceted wellness solutions.

What people noticed within 5 seconds

- Image of a couple and attributing this to love and pleasure kind of product
- Sweet or some sort of candy that enhances pleasure (Pink Tablet not immediately recognized as chocolate)
- Possible Viagra Alternative was quoted as the first thought to pop up

What were your first impressions?

- Love and pleasure enhancer
- Candy or Sweet product for couples
- Modern website
- Metro / TMZ / Vice reviews were quoted in User Testing as a great trust indicator
- A little confusion regarding ingredients

What stand out to you on the page?

- Has social and trust elements like TikTok video reviews that speaks to our ICP – Gen Z and Millennials
- Fast and responsive design
- Contrasting colors on important elements such as background and CTAs
- Displaying low rating reviews was a trust-building element for some Users, they say “if you’re willing to show it (the review), you’ll stand behind your claims the best you can, this is reassuring to me as a potential customer”

Is there anything missing?

- Showing all the ingredients on the homepage
- Specifying if the products are gender focused or not, users have reported that pictures of a man on dark chocolate and the ‘pink’ color would indicate different use cases based on gender

Would you buy?

- Viral TikTok/Instagram videos prompt purchases out of curiosity.
- Premium pricing is a purchase barrier.
- Holiday discounts and promotions encourage buying.
- fun and novel experience to spice up relationships

~People express a desire to see more reviews, particularly authentic feedback discussing downsides. Additionally, they want to see easy exercises instead of difficult ones.

What aspects can preventing you to buy?

- Price: The product is considered premium, priced at $30 for three squares of chocolate, which may be a barrier for some customers.
- Effectiveness: There were concerns regarding the effectiveness of the product, or if it may not be as powerful as pharmaceutical alternatives like Viagra.
- Product Condition on Arrival: During the summer months, there are complaints about the chocolate arriving melted.
- Users report that Melting Protection should be included in the price of the product, not a separate thing, specially if only showing this in the last stage of purchase.

What info you get before buy?

- Viral marketing videos on platforms like TikTok and Instagram.
- Product details, though some users find them lacking in specifics like weight or quantity.
- User reviews, which are present but some users have difficulty accessing or find them insufficient to answer all questions.
- Youtube or other reviewing platforms outside the website.
- Pricing information, with some users questioning the way pricing was displayed.

What information are you looking for?

- Detailed product information, such as quantity, effectiveness, and overall value.
- Reviews and testimonials that answer questions about the product's performance.
- Link to Social proof from reputable sources like VICE and TMZ to validate the product's credibility.
- Clear information on discounts and promotions, preferably presented at the point of purchase rather than through intrusive pop-ups.

~People are interested in the multifunctional Pilates bar and want to understand the differences between products. They find the prices acceptable and would like to see more trustworthiness.

Which product you will buy?

- Female users tend to want to try Pink Cherry and Male users report wanting to buy Dark Chocolate, although that's not always the case. They assume based on the description, color and pictures.

First impressions for product page

- Confusion on product purpose and pricing.
- Dislike of intrusive pop-ups. Need for clearer information on ingredients and benefits.
- Navigation challenges on mobile. Positive response to reviews and endorsements.
- Approval of detailed product presentation through pictures. the product.

Cart and Checkout Experience

- Users reported seeing what is expected of a checkout phase
- Some users mentioned that they needed to comprehend shipping information before proceeding too far in the buyer's journey, thus maybe it could be placed in the initial cart step or even in the product page.
- The majority of consumers took the Melting Protection out of the cart because they believed it should be included in the product's value and not be a separate item.

Improvements

- Clarify product information: Enhance product descriptions to clearly outline benefits, ingredients, and usage.
- Streamline navigation: Simplify site navigation and make key information more accessible.
- Improve review accessibility: Ensure reviews are easy to find and read, offering detailed insights.
- Transparent pricing: Provide clear pricing information, especially for bundles, to prevent confusion.
- Optimize pop-ups: Reduce intrusiveness of pop-ups and consider their necessity.
- Enhance mobile experience: Address mobile navigation and accessibility issues to improve user experience.

Key Takeaways | User Testing Analysis

- Need for clarity: Users require straightforward information on product purpose, benefits, and pricing.
- Pop-up strategy: Intrusive pop-ups detract from the user experience and need optimization.
- Enhanced transparency: There's a call for detailed ingredient and shipping information.
- Improved navigation: Address navigation and accessibility challenges, especially on mobile.
- Value of social proof: Positive reactions to product reviews and reputable endorsements highlight the importance of credibility.